Cats rule and dogs drool...

We're certain every cat in the world would agree with the above headline. Dogs, on the other paw, may disagree. But who cares? Not cats.

Author George F. Will said of felines, "The phrase 'domestic cat' is an oxymoron." We cat lovers beg to differ. Felines have their own language, their own culture, their own ideas, their own just-about-everything. And yes, cats do mostly call the shots and that is their fashion. They never settle for second best, picking their humans and their forever homes carefully. Who can blame them? Would you settle for second best?

It goes without saying that cats rules the pages of this book, from beginning to end. Knowing their proclivity to always be in charge, they wouldn't have it any other way. And we approve.
